Holy Trinity National School

Retirement

It is with much sadness that we bid a fond farewell to our Deputy Principal Ms. Brianóg Brady Dawson who has announced her intention to retire in September. Brianóg joined a very small developing school in September 2007, and for the past twelve years has been a key influence as Special Education Teacher and in recent years as Deputy Principal in the development of Holy Trinity National School.

As a teacher, Brianóg's room has always been a happy and busy place where she ensured that each child was encouraged and supported to achieve his/her potential, both in an educational and a personal context.

As Deputy Principal, she has been a leading figure in guiding the school through the huge changes which have occurred in the educational landscape over the past decade. Her infectious enthusiasm, together with a cheerful, good humoured and inclusive approach has motivated pupils, staff and wider school community to ensure that the school is at the forefront of best educational practice.

We extend our grateful appreciation to Brianóg for her years of hard work, commitment and dedication to Holy Trinity National School.

We wish Brianóg every blessing for the future.

The appointment of her successor will be made before the end of June.
